Beaufort, South Carolina

2013-2014 BSO Season Opens with "The Last Word" of Haydn & Dvorak October 10th & 13th

Franz Joseph Haydn and Antonin Dvorak give us their "Last Word" in the Beaufort Symphony Orchestra's first concert of the 2013-2014 Season.

Haydn's Symphony No. 104, popularly known as "The London Symphony," was composed in Vienna in 1795 following a stay in London during which he composed the first six of the 12 "London" series.

Dvorak's Symphony No.9, known as "The New World Symphony" was composed in 1893 while he was living in America.

Written some 100 years apart, their last symphonies are among the most celebrated by musicians and music lovers alike.

The concerts presented last spring at the Beaufort High School Performing Arts Center and the Sun City Performance Hall with over 100 musicians from both the Beaufort Symphony Orchestra and the Youth Orchestra were triumphs surpassing the Board's expectations for the idea of a joint concert. Thanks to everyone.

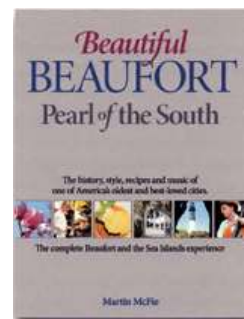

A DVD of the concert is available to our patrons.

Look for it at all BSO and BSYO concerts.

(Donations gratefully accepted.)

Buy Gift Copies of the Book Beautiful Beaufort Pearl of the South

The complete Beaufort and the Sea Island experience. Hardcover book with CD and DVD: $30.00.
